Providing this critical agency with the ability to virtually double its statewide distribution of needed food products, the former Rojack's Supermarket on Niantic Avenue in Providence was converted into the Food Bank's new distribution center and executive offices.

Ahlborg crews renovated and extended an existing mezzanine, constructed a new loading dock, removed and replaced the flooring system, refurbished the warehouse and constructed a new kitchen, as well as created new, efficient executive offices in this 65,000 square foot facility.
